SHIPMENT OF RED CROSS GOODS ON MAKURA DRAW WELL IN AUSTRALIA

Bringing a light passenger list, with only 15 for this port and 75 through the Canadian-Australian liner Makura docked at 7:30 o'clock this morning at Pier 7. She brought 15 sacks of mail from Australia, and sailed at 1 o'clock this afternoon, taking 20 passengers and mail for the states and Canada, from here.

Honolulu cargo discharged by the boat was small, only 5 1/2 tons, but her through cargo was quite heavy, weighing 156 1/2 tons and consisting of hides, wool, 1500 boxes of kauri gum, used to make glue; soap and various substances; 700 bags of copra and 200 boxes of butter.

The Makura took on 60 tons of canned pineapples from this port for the main-land. Assistant Purser A. W. Wynn-Williams reported that among the through freight is a big box of Red Cross goods en route to the front to be used in the Red Cross hospital work among the Allies' wounded. The box was subscribed by Australian citizens, and is consigned to the Red Cross Society of London.

Purser W. G. Barnett stated that when the Makura stopped at Suva, the capital of the Fiji Islands, October 8, at noon, final preparations were being made to celebrate Fiji Day the following day. Canoes and barges were coming in from all the islands of the group, and with the natives dressed in all their aboriginal finery. One of the features of the celebration was to be a war dance done in the old-style manner. This has not been permitted by the British authorities in many years, but this year apparently the bars have been let down a little and the islanders allowed to celebrate as they choose.

Capt. J. D. S. Phillips reported an uneventful voyage, with light winds and calm seas all the way. The ship's doctor reported to Dr. E. E. Trotter, head of the U. S. public health service here, that a slight outbreak of smallpox had been reported in Sydney, but that no typhus fever epidemic was extant there, as reported in a Reuter despatch from London a few days ago.

ENTERPRISE WILL LEAVE SEATTLE OCTOBER 30

Announcement was made late yesterday by Castle & Cooke, agents for the Matson Navigation Company, that the company has arranged to despatch the Enterprise from Seattle on October 30, accepting freight from Seattle, for Honolulu, Port Allen, Kapaeha, Kahului and Hilo. This sailing does not in any way affect the schedule of the Hyades and the Hilonian, which will operate in accordance with the schedule previously announced.

HARBOR NOTES

There are now 15 naval vessels in this port, of which seven are submarines and three more are the "convoy ships" which brought the K boats over.

At 9 o'clock tomorrow morning the U. S. army transport Sheriden will sail for Guam and Manila, taking mail from the postoffice for those cities, Hongkong, and points beyond.

Twenty-six days out from Aberdeen, the schooner Louise, Capt. A. L. Hammer, is in port today, having arrived yesterday. She brought 486,575 feet of lumber for the City Mill Company.

The Matson steamer Hilonian docked this morning at the railroad wharf, bringing a large freight cargo and 102 sacks of mail. The steamer arrived off port from San Francisco at 10:55 last night.

Three of the German refugee steamers which have been docked at Pier 17 for the last 14 months, the Staats Secretar Kracke, the Gouverneur Jaeschke and the Long Moon, were turned around yesterday under the direction of Capt. W. R. Foster, naval master. This was done to avoid electrolytic trouble, as an iron ship left lying in one direction for more than a year is likely to experience compass trouble.

The steamer Hilonian, in port today, is the ship which tried to tow the steamer Graywood to San Francisco when the latter ship was picked up in a leaking condition off the north coast of Umilla reef, October 2, in a heavy gale. The Hilonian took off the Graywood's crew, and attached a line to the steamer. The line soon parted and the ship sank shortly afterwards. Her cargo, 500 tons of ore and lumber, was valued at $500,000.

American plays including "Bought and Paid For," "Within the Law," "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "The Fortune Hunter," and numerous other works of United States playwrights, are "going big" in Australia, according to Bert Royle, one of the most prominent theatrical magnates of that continent, who arrived today on the Makura for a three weeks' vacation here.

These productions are among the most successful in Australia this season," said Mr. Royle, who is the New Zealand representative of J. C. Williamson, Ltd., the leading theatrical producers of Australia, ranking with the Forts, Shuberts, Frohmans and Belasows of New York.

"We have eight or 10 companies on the road in Australia now," said Mr. Royle. "Fred Niblo and wife, the noted American players, are scoring a great success in 'Seven Keys to Baldpate,' 'The Fortune Hunter,' and 'Get Rich Quick Wallingford.' Muriel Starr, another brilliant American actress, is attracting large audiences in 'Bought and Paid For,' and 'Within the Law.'"

"Our method in Australia is practically the same as in the states. We try out a play in the big centers and if it makes good then we put companies on the road playing it. All our productions are first produced in Melbourne and Sydney, and if they are successful there, the next step is to start road companies."

Mr. Royle's headquarters are in Wellington, New Zealand, which he calls a "suburb of Australia." He says there is no depression in the theatrical business in either New Zealand or Australia, and that prices for the best grade of theatrical productions range from two shillings (50 cents) to seven and six (about $1.80) a seat.

"I am here for a good rest, and I don't want to see a paper or a theatrical magazine while I'm here," he said this morning. "I will remain in Honolulu seeing the islands until the Makura returns in three weeks. This is the first time I have been here and from what I have seen of Honolulu so far today I am sure this will not be my last trip here."
